FBLA Facts

Future Business Leaders of America-Middle Level is the national organization for all students who accept the purpose of the association, subscribe to its creed, and demonstrate a willingness to contribute to good school-community relations. Middle level chapters in Arkansas operate as an integral part of the education program under the guidance of a business teacher, the FBLA state committee, school administrators, and business persons.

Local and state chapters of FBLA operate under charters granted by FBLA-PBL, Inc. Each chapter, with its own bylaws, adopts projects and programs within the framework of the National association. The FBLA plan of organization includes local chapters, state chapters and the FBLA national association.

The local chapter consists of young men and women in local schools who are organized and officially chartered in accordance with the guiding principles of FBLA-PBL, Inc.

State chapters are composed of local FBLA chapters within the state. Delegates representing local chapters meet several times within their geographical districts to elect district officers, practice leadership skills, learn more about the state and national projects, and participate in the competitive events program.

The FBLA-PBL national association is composed of local and state chapters and each individual FBLA member. A headquarters is maintained in Reston, VA. The FBLA-PBL Board of Directors establishes policies in line with the career and technical needs of business education students.

The purpose of FBLA-Middle Level Division is to provide, as an integral part of the instructional program, additional opportunities for students to explore, encounter, and experience positive leadership skills for their present lifestyles, as well as their future work.

FBLA serves as an effective means of bringing students together to deal with career preparation, national problems, community improvements, and worthwhile relationships with local, state, and national groups interested in the welfare of youth.

Membership Dues

A student must pay local, state, and national dues to become a member of FBLA. Dues are paid as one fee to the local chapter treasurer or chapter adviser. The treasurer/adviser is responsible for sending state and national dues to the appropriate person. National and state dues should be paid by October 20. Those chapters who report initial membership by October 20 ensure their chapters' eligibility for the Outstanding Chapter Award of Merit and will receive the first mailing of the national membership publication, Tomorrow's Business Leader. Membership dues may be paid throughout the school year; however, to receive the full benefits of membership, dues should be paid early in the school year. For participation in district competitive events, dues must be postmarked to the national FBLA office on or before January 1.

State dues are $2.00 and national dues are $6.00. National and state dues (in one check), with appropriate forms, should be mailed to:

District Division

On May 1, 1954, Arkansas held its first state conference at the Marion Hotel in Little Rock, Arkansas, to adopt a constitution, elect state officers, and petition for a state charter. Miss Dorothy Frazier of Little Rock was elected the first state president. The Arkansas Chapter of FBLA was chartered June 14, 1954, with 18 local chapters. In 1958, Mr. Frederick Basco was named State Chairman of FBLA and an extensive campaign was launched to increase the number of chapters in the state.

Fort Smith High School was the first known Arkansas chapter to receive a national charter and was assigned the number 222. Arkansas Polytechnic College (now Arkansas Tech University) was the first college in Arkansas to affiliate with the FBLA national organization and was assigned charter number 1417.

In 1958, the national office approved a division of the high school and college members, and the collegiate division was officially designated as Phi Beta Lambda. Arkansas State Teacher's College (now the University of Central Arkansas) was the first Arkansas chapter to receive its new name of Phi Beta Lambda in 1959. However, the two groups continued to hold their state conferences together.

At the 1962 FBLA State Conference, the college chapters voted to hold their conference for the following year separately from the high school chapters. Under the leadership of William Hopper, the Phi Beta Lambda State President from the College of the Ozarks (now University of the Ozarks), plans were made for the first Phi Beta Lambda State Conference which was held March 22-23, 1963.

In 1970, State Department of Education staff members were appointed as state advisers. The state advisers were assigned to work with the state officers to help plan and direct activities of the FBLA-PBL State Chapter. The State Advisers are on the State Board of Directors along with the President of FBLA and the President of PBL and one District Coordinator.

District Division

By 1971, the state membership had grown to the point that it was necessary to divide into districts just as the nation is divided into regions. Five districts were originally created. District workshops and conferences were then held to elect officers and participate in competitive events. The top five winners in each district event would then be eligible to compete on the state level. An officer was elected from each district to serve as a district president as well as a vice president on the state level. The State Vice Presidents for each district are elected prior to the State Conference at their District Spring Leadership Conference. The State President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Reporter are then elected at the State Conference. The underclassman filing an application and scoring the highest on the Parliamentary Procedure written test is also appointed Parliamentarian at the State Leadership Conference.

During the 1983-1984 school year, the districts were expanded to allow for the further growth of the state chapter. The boundaries of the districts were adjusted to create a sixth district.

In the 1988-1989 school year, the district boundaries were once again adjusted to accommodate the growth in membership. The new district officers for Districts VII and VIII were elected at the State Leadership Conference in April 1989, so that the officers would be able to take advantage of the training opportunities offered at the state and national levels. The addition of the new districts increased the number of state officers from 11 to 13.

In addition to the eight senior high districts, there are five junior high districts in the state organization. The first junior high district was established in 1978 for junior high business programs in the central part of the state. Then in 1990, another district was added in Northwest Arkansas to accommodate the growth of junior high business education programs. In 1991, two additional junior high districts were established--one in South Arkansas and one in Northeast Arkansas. In 1998, a fifth district was added in Southeast to accommodate the growth of FBLA in that area of the state.

Conferences

Dress Code for Conferences

The leadership conferences attended by Arkansas FBLA-Middle Level/Junior High members are designed to train students to become leaders in business. Part of that training is teaching students to wear appropriate business attire for these meetings. Because the organization is of a business nature, it is fitting that students dress to portray the business image of the organization. This image is a reflection on individual schools and FBLA.

The following dress code has been adopted by the State Executive Council and approved by the State FBLA-PBL Board of Directors:

General Sessions, Competitive Events, and Workshop Sessions.

Business attire for young women must be a business suit, appropriate dress, or professional pants suit. Many women's two piece suites are designed so that they do not require a blouse; therefore, this will be accepted. Outfits of denim (any color) are not allowed. Shoes for women should be dress. No tennis shoes or athletic shoes are allowed. Sling-back shoes and open toe shoes are accepted. Young men must wear dress slacks (no denim of any color), dress shirt, tie, and dress shoes (athletic or tennis shoes are not appropriate).

The following items are not considered appropriate at any time on an FBLA trip: athletic shorts, spandex, cut-off shorts, bare midriffs, jeans or shorts with frayed holes, t-shirts with suggestive print, muscle t-shirts, or spaghetti strap tops.

Conferences

District Fall Leadership Conference

The middle level/junior high districts within the state organization hold Fall Leadership Conferences for members of chapters within their geographic boundaries. Students and advisers have an opportunity to share ideas and participate in professional development and chapter building workshops. These district fall conferences are held in September, October or November of each year. Information about the conference and registration information is distributed to each local chapter by the district coordinator.

District Spring Leadership Conference

Each middle level/junior high district has a Spring Leadership Conference in late January or early February. The purpose of these conferences is to further leadership development by participation in the middle level/junior high competitive events program. Each local chapter will receive information from their district coordinator in early January giving the information about the conference. The conferences are under the direction of the junior high district coordinators and district officers in those districts large enough for officers. In the other districts, the conference is under the direction of the district coordinator and a local chapter's officers serving as the host school.

National Competitive Recognition

The FBLA Middle Level Division has implemented new events for National Competitive Recognition. Some events will be recognized as state and district events. To be eligible for competition, the local chapter submitting projects must be registered for their district conference and the members entered in the individual events must be registered for their district conference. They are identified below:
